

Shop With Your Heart Grocery List

Whatever you eat, you can improve the lives of farm animals, whether that is by purchasing more plant-based products or seeking out brands bearing welfare certification labels that represent better farming practices and require independent audits with 100% compliance. The standards set forth by these three animal welfare certifications meet these requirements:

1. Animal Welfare Approved (AWA)

2. Certified Humane (CH)

3. Global Animal Partnership (GAP)

*SHOPPING AT WHOLE FOODS MARKET

· Almost all of the beef, chicken, pork and turkey sold in Whole Foods Market stores is Global Animal Partnership certified and labeled. To ensure that the product came from animals that led better lives, we advise only buying products bearing the GAP (Step 2 and above) logo. Some brands that bear the GAP label at Whole Foods Market will appear in other stores without the logo. That may be a packaging choice or it may mean that those animals were not raised to the GAP standards.

AWA and GAP Step 4-5+ currently require the use of chicken breeds that have higher welfare than industrial breeds, which can suffer due to their genetics. As of 2024, Shop With Your Heart will only recognize chicken-welfare certifications and brands that require better breeds.
